General Comments or Valuable Insight

Today it was the Financials and Healthcare.

Tomorrow Healthcare traders should look at Regeneron for an early tell as it closed slightly above its 200 DMA.

Party on guys, we're now at many consensus year-end targets posited in December by many of the Wall Street strategists.

Tomorrow the S&P's need to hold early as they did last Thursday.

A lot of money has been made since the election. Many names have been vertical.

Now the Vix is showing renewed interest with a close over its 50 DMA.

The market has not put in a tradable high although it would not be surprising to see some position squaring ahead of the long U.S. holiday weekend.

If this indeed unfolds, I would suggest that tomorrow would be a better day from a volume perspective to take money off the table.

The game will be afoot after the U.S. opens.
