U.S.Steel CEO did wonders talking his stock today at the White House
I said I'd take another look if it broke 10%.
The pattern is ugly although the slide stopped at 36.32, into mvg avg support.
It's a contender for an early trade tomorrow pending price action

This spread has been holding for days and working higher. When the Gold broke $10 intra day yesterday this spread never backed off.

Gold traders would do well to track this spread when trading the outright Gold Futures.

General Comments or Valuable Insight

There are Lots of Gold Charts. Which Futures contract is irrelevant.

This is the time of the quarter, going into rollovers, when looking at the correct map will save you a lot of money.

There is a big difference between Daily Pit, Daily Globex, Daily Continuation and Active Daily Continuation with the latter rolling in the most active Future as lead contract.

I'll look at all of them before I write. You should review and be aware of all before you click the mouse.

Different charts and different time frames can look very different.

The more pictures that look the same the better your decision-making will be.

Futures have different characteristics than Equities. Your technical work (homework) should reflect the nuances.

Today the Nasd was the weak link. Yes we have a potential topping pattern in Nasdaq.

The Spreads do not confirm the pattern.
